INSTRUCTIONS FOR PRINTING BULLETINS

Note: Print half as many lasers as needed since each sheet of paper has 2 bulletins. Printing on a light tan or cream colored paper will provide a more historical look.

If using a printer which prints 2-sided:
Print page 2 on the front side and page 3 on the back side—landscape (horizontal) printing.

If using a printer which prints 1-sided:
Print page 2, then flip paper, place back in tray and print page 3—landscape (horizontal) printing.

After printing, cut printed bulletins in half. A swing-arm cutter works best.

Bulletins are copyrighted material. For permission to reprint any text or images, please contact:
Pamela R. Durso
by e-mail at pamdurso@baptisthistory.org or by phone at (678) 547-6095.
In the eighteenth century, American Baptists quickly moved west to the frontier areas, built new churches, and established associations, but they were slow in forming formal mission organizations. In the first 160 years of Baptist life in the United States, missionary work was haphazardly organized and carried out by associations and regional societies. Among those earliest societies formed was the Boston Female Society for Missionary Purposes. Founded in 1800 by eight Baptist and six Congregational women, the society raised money for mission work on the frontier and later for British Baptist mission endeavors.

The leader of the society, Mary Webb (1779-1861), a faithful member of Boston’s Second Baptist Church, helped found this new organization from the confines of her wheelchair. She then served for fifty years as its secretary-treasurer, writing thousands of letters in which she sought support for mission causes, generating numerous reports and financial statements, and leading the society’s business conferences.

Twelve years after the Boston Society was founded, Baptists in 1812 formed their first national missions organization, the Baptist Society for Propagating the Gospel in India and Other Foreign Parts. This new society came into being in order to support the work of Adoniram and Ann Judson and Luther Rice, who had traveled to India to serve as Congregational missionaries but had accepted Baptist teachings, been immersed, and now sought backing from the Baptists. The Judsons soon moved to Burma and began mission efforts there, and Rice returned to the United States, in order to stir up support from the Baptists.

In 1814, as a result of the leadership of Rice, the General Convention of the Baptist Denomination in the United States of America for Foreign Missions was founded. Because this new organization held meetings only every three years, it became known as the Triennial Convention. From 1814 to the present, Baptists in America have been actively involved in official support of the mission movement.
The Meaning of the Baptist Experience
by William E. Hull

Special Price
$1.25

List price $2.50
Price good through June 30, 2009.

To order this resource, e-mail pamdurso@baptisthistory.org or call 678-547-6095.

The Center for Baptist Studies produces a free monthly e-journal, The Baptist Studies Bulletin, which is distributed through e-mail. The Center also offers an on-line certificate program in Baptist studies for both laity and clergy; timely and relevant educational conferences; and a website with valuable Baptist resources. For more information, visit www.centerforbaptiststudies.org.

The Baptist History and Heritage Society publishes a journal, Baptist History and Heritage, and newsletter, Baptist Heritage Update. The Society also has an informative website, which features an on-line resource catalog, a membership application, and a new series of articles titled “History Speaks to Hard Questions Baptists Ask.” For more information, visit www.baptisthistory.org.

The Center for Baptist Studies
Mercer University
1400 Coleman Avenue
Macon, GA 31207
www.centerforbaptiststudies.org
Bruce T. Gourley, interim director

Baptist History and Heritage Society
3001 Mercer University Drive
Atlanta, GA 30341
www.baptisthistory.org
Charles W. Deweese, executive director
Pamela R. Durso, associate executive director-treasurer

This bulletin insert is the sixth of twelve to be provided monthly during 2009 by the Baptist History and Heritage Society and The Center for Baptist Studies. The article was written by Pamela R. Durso, associate executive director-treasurer, Baptist History and Heritage Society, Atlanta, Georgia.